MOU/Memorandum of Understanding

Private Equity:
Venture Capital & Private Equity

What is Venture Capital?

Investment is made in startups and other early stage firms. Venture capitalists finance the growth of a business project from its initial stages. Venture capital is normally associated with technology startups or startups with a strong innovative component.

What is Private Equity?

Private Equity investment is aimed at unlisted companies with the objective of contributing to company growth or to their further development. SMEs are the main beneficiaries of this type of investment.

Growth capital
To finance the growth of profitable companies. The funds may be used for the acquisition of fixed assets, to increase working capital for the development of new products or access new markets. These are larger investments with less uncertainty due to the existence of historical data.

Replacement capital
The venture capital firm replaces part of the current shareholder base. It is frequent in family businesses and in succession situations.

Leveraged buyouts (LBO)
Acquisition of companies using a significant amount of borrowed funds, to pay for the purchase price of the company. These funds are partly guaranteed by the acquired company's own assets. The other part is capital contributed by the investors in the transaction, who will then take ownership.

Capital restructuring / Turnaround investing
Investment in companies experiencing difficulties for an extended period of time that are in need of financial resources to implement major changes in order to survive.
